TOP 10 STUDENT CITIES: EVERYTHING YOU NEED TO KNOW
Sponsored by Arden University

Arden University strives to make higher education more accessible, engaging and beneficial than ever. They currently offer more than 50 versatile programmes across a wide range of fields from certificates to an MBA. They are the first online distance learning university to launch in the UK, making them uniquely good at what we do.

Studying online is ideal if you need to fit studies around other commitments such as full-time work or family. Wherever you are in the world, Arden’s online degrees let you gain your degree on your terms.

If you’re looking to study your degree in London, they also have three modern study centres located in Ealing, Tower Hill, and Holborn, each of which is easily accessed by public transport.
A look into the best student cities

Choosing where to study your master’s degree can be tricky. For some, finding a city that has top ranked universities might be their priority, while for others it might be job opportunities.

There’s no perfect formula to use when deciding where to study. It all depends on what you want to achieve with your degree and what you want to get out of your study abroad experience. It’s important to consider a variety of different factors when making your decision.

This infographic reveals the top 10 best student cities in the world. We’ll be exploring what makes these cities popular among postgraduate students.

Zurich

Zurich, Switzerland’s largest city, is well-known as one of the world’s major financial centres. As in any Swiss city, the cost of living in Zurich is high, but for international students this may be offset by the country’s relatively low tuition fees.

Visas

Working while studying: International students can take up part-time work for up to 15 hours a week during the semester and they can work full-time during holidays, but only after they have been living in Switzerland for at least six months.

Working after graduation as an EU citizen: Not required.

Working after graduation as a Non-EU citizen: After graduation you can remain in Zurich for six months to look for work, on the same basis as Swiss graduates.

If student life in Paris appeals to you, then there’s no shortage of great universities to choose from, including 17 public institutions (with varying specialisations) and several prestigious grandes écoles. The city has a large and diverse student community, which goes a long way to guarantee the continued vibrancy of its long-established intellectual and creative culture.

Visas

Working while studying:
As an international student with a study visa in France, you can take on 964 hours of paid work in a single year (120 eight-hour days) as long as you have a valid residency permit. During term time you can work up to 19.5 hours per week and during university holidays you can work full-time.

Working after graduation as an EU citizen:
Not required.

Working after graduation as a non-EU citizen:
The APS scheme entitles graduates of French master’s-level degree programmes to apply for a further one-year, non-renewable, temporary residence permit, which allows graduates to work in any job up to 60 percent of a normal working week. Alternatively, non-EU citizens who have a work contract and are paid at least one and a half times the minimum wage are eligible to work full time.
